CARL OLSON LOSES TO DR. B. F. ROLLER

In a mat affair that was both exciting and amusing to the crowd of enthusiasts of the wrestling game that ended at the Lyceum last night, Dr. Ben F. Roller succeeded by methods of science and incidental strength to pin Carl Olson's shoulders to the mat in two straight falls.

First bout was won in 36 minutes and 4 seconds, by body and hammerlock, while next time up the medico downed the Norwegian giant in 6 minutes and 2 seconds, a head-and-body hold being employed in the Norwegian's undoing.

Carl Olson, a "Big Greek" mixed up in the curtain-raiser, Zeraga, winning easily without the assistance of a derick. "Bumps" Turner writhed with Billy Murray in a tearful number and slammed merrily Murray twice.

The feature of the preliminary affairs was the splendid referee work of Mr. Isaac Kirkstein, who almost made the bouts a wrestling battle-royal. Referee "Ike" was thrown twice in the mix-up, but it did not count, although applauded.

Pat O'Connor refereed the main bout with his usual level-headedness.

AMATEUR BASEBALL LEAGUE MEETS SOON

Cincinnati, Ohio, Jan. 5.—The National Baseball Commission today dismissed the petitions for the baseball players' Fraternity. Three of the concessions asked for were held to be internal matters of the national association and could only come before the commission on appeal.

The other concessions asked was the inserting of a clause in the players' contract granting full pay for as long as the men were under contract even if they were injured in service and incapacitated.

DOPEY DAN AND LON

The Guy Who Does as He Pleases.

Dear Folks: Yesterday Lon overheard a young brat tell his mother he'd do just as he pleased, when his fond parent was giving him a bit of sound advice. The incident made him feel so hot that he rushed home and worked out his feelings for them who do as they please.

No doubt you have frequently noticed, among the many folks you know, that kid who pays no attention to advice from a friend or a foe.

Who'll keep quiet when you start in to argue, but who seldom, if ever agrees. Who does up his life from one motto, and that is, "I'll do as I please."

He soon blossoms forth into young manhood, without being told to unbend. And no matter how many have tried it, they've had to give up in the end.

Perhaps he has seen his own errors, for a fool oftentimes plainly sees. But simply because he is cautioned he sticks tight to his "Do as I please."

When he first ventures out into business, his self-assurance, for a time, is admired.

His high, haughty, cock-sure demeanor by many may be greatly desired. But his associates soon get his right number, then quickly his skirts are well grazed.

And it's his "do-as-he-pleases" slippery to be a guy who did just as he pleased.

It might be that later you'll see him, when they've got him inside looking out.

But still if you'd bother to question, he'd find some excuse without doubt. So don't waste good sympathy on him, nor claim that he must be diseased.

For our folks are all over-crowded with the "guys" who've done just as they pleased.

Note—Lon says there's only one thing on earth more sickening than a female who does as she pleases, if he is using her stuff.

PRO FOOTBALL NOT A DEAD ISSUE LOCALLY

Game Thrived Here Until Ban Was Put on Sunday Athletics.

By JOHN A. DUGAN.

Professional football in Washington is not a dead issue and never will be as long as the gridiron game is in existence. Although the common sentiment of the leading local magnates does not advocate the movement which is being strongly boosted throughout the Middle West to organize and establish on a big scale the professional game, this class of football has reigned here during the past few years and will always reign as long as the local pigskin chasers can see a chance of getting a cut in the so-called big games of the local independent football season.

Although President Benjamin S. Minor of the Washington Baseball Club is not particularly in favor of the scheme he has not passed real judgment against such a proposition as a professional league and when figures and facts of the professional gridiron game of the past eight years are presented to him or the directors of the local ball club a reconsideration of an assertion published recently may be expected.

Financial figures of the Vigilant Athletic Club team until the season of 1915 show profits that would do justice to any athletic proposition ever attempted. It will be remembered by local sporting fans that this Vigilant Athletic Club not only cleaned up in the professional football ranks but made the forward professional in semi-professional base ball here when the Federal League Clubs invaded this town to play a team of these Vigilant boys under the name of R. P. Andrews Paper Company.

It was this Federal League invasion that has practically killed professional football in this city. The famous case of the Washington Baseball Club's Sunday game with one of the American League clubs, the long and the minds of local sporting fans and also the threat of the staging of a Grand Opera. The American League Sunday game here never materialized but the Grand Opera was held and the corporation of the District of Columbia action and ruled football and other forms of Sunday amusement contrary to the law.

This regulation and action of the corporation council practically killed the little professional football Washington could boast of and the season of 1916 witnessed poor exhibitions in local ranks, as but two out-of-town organizations visited this city, under a heavy expense, which was losing proposition to the local promoters.

Even with only a silver collection to gather in the much needed finance the game in 1916 thrived beyond expectations. The organization of the local athletic club monthly have a plan on foot at present to find the reason why the discrimination is made between athletics as a Sunday pastime and theatrical acts which are held on every Sabbath.

Local professional football has never attempted to compete against the collegiate game and a close observation of the professional game throughout the West will show that these games are at all times held on Sunday, the same as the local contests, and if the discrimination between Sunday theatricals and athletics is before us, before we are told it will not be a bit surprising to see Washington fall in line as a professional football city along with the other big Eastern centers.

BARRY IN CONFERENCE WITH RED SOX OWNERS

Boston, Jan. 5.—Capt. Jack Barry, of the Red Sox, came here from his home in New York today for a conference with President Harry Frazee regarding the management of the team. The great infielder, ever since the time that the first announcement of Carrigan's retirement was made, has been prominently mentioned as his successor.

CENTRAL DEFEATED BY EASTERN TOSSERS

Capitol Hill Quint Wins, 22 to 21. Business Beats Western, 21 to 12.

The Inter-high School Basketball League got away to a flying start yesterday afternoon in the Y. M. C. A. gym, when a double-header was scheduled in which the Business team defeated Western 21 to 12, while the Eastern quint sprung a surprise by trimming the Central team in the nightcap, 22 to 21.

In the first game the Western team was the first to score, when Johnson caged one from the foul line. Both teams seemed to be nervous in the opening minutes and the first quarter ended with the clubs on even terms, with seven points apiece. In the next period the Business team came in with a rush, and with the help of the Wise Brothers shooting they managed to lead Western by a 12-to-10 count, when time was called for the half.

In the second half Business started to mix things right and left, and Capt. McDonald and Buck Wise were sent to the showers by the officials, but even with this greatly-weakened combination the Stenographers landed the long end of the count. The shooting of B. Wise and the guarding of the Business backs were the features of this contest.

Scholastic followers were given a real surprise in the nightcap when the Capitol Hill team romped with the long end of the count in one of the best games staged in the "Y" gym this season. Eastern entered the fray with the odds against them, but when the final whistle was sounded, Coach McAffery's team had won by a 22-to-21 score.

Eastern presented a team that showed the best passing of the quartet that took the floor yesterday and with the help of Newman and Cummings, who did some of the best guarding, had the Central bunch on the run throughout the contest.

Central had the long end of the game when the half ended because of the goal-shooting of Gottlieb, but in the second session he was covered in an avaricious manner and never obtained another basket.

Eastern forwards paved the way to victory, as Baldwin played rings around White of the O. Stars, while Thomas and Johnson seemed to be hard to cover. The Capitol Hill team grabbed the game out of the fire in the third period when they came along with a rush and evened the count at fourteen all.

With such brilliant talent in local ranks that can invade the West and make good every schoolboy's dream, it is considered one of the professional football ranks if this idea of a Chicago sport writer goes through.

Local professional football has never attempted to compete against the collegiate game and a close observation of the professional game throughout the West will show that these games are at all times held on Sunday, the same as the local contests, and if the discrimination between Sunday theatricals and athletics is before us, before we are told it will not be a bit surprising to see Washington fall in line as a professional football city along with the other big Eastern centers.
